Physical Therapist

Amanda Lewallen, PT, DPT, ATC, believes great physical therapy starts with treating patients like family. At OrthoIndy, she works closely with patients recovering from musculoskeletal injuries and surgical procedures, helping them regain strength, confidence and mobility.

Amanda enjoys building strong relationships with her patients and encouraging them to take an active role in their recovery. By helping patients develop the tools and confidence to manage their progress, she works to improve their quality of life and support their individual goals. Amanda also collaborates closely with OrthoIndy physicians and occupational therapists when needed to provide comprehensive, coordinated care that supports each patient's journey.

Amanda first discovered physical therapy thanks to a suggestion from her mother – an idea that ultimately led to a career where she enjoys caring for and interacting with patients every day. Amanda earned her bachelor's degree in athletic training from Franklin College before receiving her Doctor of Physical Therapy from the University of Indianapolis. She is also a certified athletic trainer.
