

Beth Staubach, MPT, CIDN

Physical Therapy Manager

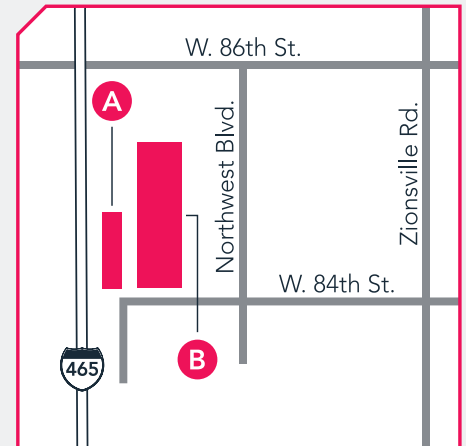

Beth Staubach has helped shape the therapy experience at OrthoIndy, first as a physical therapist working directly with patients and today as a therapy manager, supporting the teams that provide that care.

Although she no longer treats patients, Beth's years as a clinician continue to influence her approach as a manager. She believes successful therapy is about more than achieving a good clinical outcome. Patients should also feel supported throughout their rehabilitation and have a positive experience with their care team. For Beth, one of the greatest compliments is when a patient chooses OrthoIndy again or recommends the team to someone they love.

Like many other physical therapists, Beth's interest in the profession began after a sports injury in high school introduced her to therapy. Already interested in a medical career, the experience made her path clear and ultimately led her to focus on orthopedics. Beth earned her Master of Physical Therapy from Marquette University and is certified in dry needling through Integrative Dry Needling.
